place for an important social meeting or a business get-together. Salads and cold plates, notable for their excellence and variety, are offered along with a tantalizing selection of special sandwiches.

For waistline watchers, the "Medicine Man" earnestly recommends any of the hot or cold "low calorie" dishes which will satisfy diversified preferences. Complete luncheons are not neglected, with 15 entrees divided into two price categories, 1.95 wampum and 2.50 wampum, assuring guests a delightfully rewarding mid-day experience.

Characters will include three males in their late 40s, four males ranging from 20 to 30, one female in her middle 30s, and one female between the age of 16 and 20. Opening performance will be Oct. 1 and will run for four consecutive weekends.

The Showcase's current production of Night Must Fall by E. Williams will be opening Aug. 27 and continuing through Sept. 11. For further information telephone 672-5493.

GREAT PLAY

A change of pace and a refreshingly different play is in store for patrons of the Ports of Call Players when "Invitation to a March" opens in the summer tent theater on Aug. 11. Written by Arthur Laurents, (Home of the Brave and West Side Story), "Invitation to a March" was a recent hit on Broadway which starred Celeste Holm.

There are two "Marches" in this high comedy of manners — the march down the wedding aisle, and the march to conformity and a drab, conventional life, which the heroine resists in her own charming way — by falling asleep.

In this adult version of Sleeping Beauty, the prince who awakens the princess (Sandra Kolak) with a kiss turns out to be a plumber (Boye Gitzen), who sweeps her out of the arms of her fiancé (Hal Saxton) and into his own. The plumber's mother is an equally unconventional woman (played by Elizabeth Anderson), who is fond of swimming in the nude and — it seems — forgot to provide her son with a legal father.

Pat Lester, prominent actress with the Palos Verdes Players, is the sharp-tongued and blue-haired mother of the fiancé, and her husband, who turns out to be Camilla's old lover, is played by Larry McPherson.

"DAMN YANKEES" AUDITIONS

Auditions for the Long Beach Civic Opera production of the popular Broadway musical hit "Damn Yankees" will be held Sunday at 518 E. Fourth St., as follows: dancers (including Lola and Applegate contenders) 11 a.m.; singers, 1:30 to 6 and 7:30 to 10 p.m. Auditions are open and all non-union performers are invited to attend.

Particularly sought are men dancers and singers for the ensemble, as well as certain principals, such as Lola, a strong singer and dancer; Joe Hardy, a virile leading man with a good baritone voice; Applegate, a character song and dance man; Meg, sympathetic, attractive mezzo-soprano, 35 to 40; Joe Boyd, character actor with a baritone singing voice; as well as several other good character parts in and out of the ensemble.

This hilarious musical, about baseball (our national pastime) was first produced in 1955 and includes such favor-
